National Scholarships | International Students

Many scholarships and fellowships require US citizenship or residency. Below is a list of resources to assist international students interested in pursuing national fellowships while attending the University of Iowa as an undergraduate or graduate student, are encouraged to consider the opportunities listed in Scholarships for International Students*, a catalog of approximately 100 scholarship competitions which welcome applications from international students.

- Scholarships for International Students • National Association of Fellowship Advisors
- International Education Financial Aid • www.iefa.org
- Institute for International Education’s “Funding for US Study” • www.fundingusstudy.org

*A big thank you to Doug Cutchins, and the generous group of professionals from the National Association of Fellowships Advisors, who put so much time and energy into the support of international students on their own campuses and who are willing to share their knowledge with the rest of us.

Are you an undergraduate student or recent alum who is looking for the challenge and financial support of a national scholarship? Are you a motivated and focused researcher, writer or performer who is ready to seek the support of outside funders and a peer community? If so, we recommend the following steps:

- Keep your eye out for expert advice and opportunity announcements on Tumblr, Facebook and Twitter!
- Bring your draft to a Walk-In Application Development Workshop with our Director of Scholar Development. Go to http://honors.uiowa.edu/uihpfellowships/workshops-resources to check out upcoming dates.
- Check out our scholar development library - Tangible resources and announcements may be found on bulletin boards or in Room 414 in the BHC or on our website.
- Investigate your options at the national level (for both undergraduate and post-graduate funding) using our discipline-specific guide.
- Interested in a scholarship or fellowship? Contact our Scholar Development Director at kelly-thornburg@uiowa.edu or call 319-450-9842 to discuss the option of a one-on-one meeting.
